LANE'S LETTERS ON FICTITIOUS YARNS GIVEN ATTENTION

That ex-Mayor John C. Lane's let ters to other mayors throughout the country savising them that the dangers popularly associated with a trip to the islands were generally fictitious, are getting attention, is shown by a letter and a clipping which the Promotion committee, through E. "Dissipate the unfounded fears of any of your people who might visit our islands save for terror of the submarines," Lane wrote. 'They are not submarines-just whales, which disport themselves off our coast."

"Lane enthusiastically described the delights of life in the south seas as being wholly unchanged by the war. Travel on the Pacific ocean is quite safe, he said. Davis is spreading the news through this story." "City of Cleveland.
